Birthday Celebrations- different but still fun!

Even during these tough times our Direct Support Professionals are going above and beyond to ensure the people in our group homes have some fun on their special day! From a flock of flamingos on a front yard, to a drive by birthday parade, and many birthday cakes and gifts- we will not stop the celebration (even though we would like a birthday redo in 2021!).

Be an Advocate All Year Round

While Disabilities Awareness Month is celebrated in March, every month is a good time to be an advocate for people living with IDD (Intellectual/Developmental Differences). Here are some easy ways to be an advocate: Educate someone new about Angelwood and the people we serve; use person first language in speaking and writing (example: person living with Down syndrome), support companies that employ people living with IDD; or create and execute a wish list drive for Angelwood.

Did you know you can make a gift without writing a check?

Leaving a legacy of good through planned gifts and other creative giving strategies can offer advantages today and tomorrow. You can make a gift now with IRA distributions, appreciated stock, or through a Donor Advised Fund. You can also make a gift to help sustain our work in the future by designating Angelwood as a full or partial beneficiary on retirement accounts, life insurance, or in your will. To begin a discussion about options that may fit your own specific circumstances and charitable objectives, please contact Damara Farwell, Chief Development Officer at dfarwell@angelwoodjax.org or call the office 904-288-7259 to learn more.

Angelwood does not provide financial, tax, or legal advice. Please check with your financial and tax advisor.
